

Scott back — but not for long

TERRY Scott who left Wycombe Wanderers last season to go to America was back at Loakes Park on Saturday — as a spectator.

Scott, who was "just enjoying himself" in the States, is back here on holiday and will train with Blues tonight (Tuesday). However, he is not back to stay and is unlikely to turn out for the first team, although a run in the reserves could be a possibility.

At present Scott is unsure how long he will stay, but is "definitely going back to America" either before or just after Christmas. Scott is living in California and claimed Saturday's rain was the first he had seen for seven months. He arrived back in this country on Friday.

Howard Kennedy hopes to be playing again in two weeks. Following his leg operation Kennedy was kicking a ball about at Loakes Park on Saturday.

As well as Scott there was another State-side visitor to Wycombe. Rodney Marsh, at present managing a team in America, made his second appearance in two matches. He returned to the United States yesterday (Monday).

Marsh was believed to be spying on new recruits for his team that plays in the lesser of the two soccer leagues in North America.

Terry Glynn and George Borg were two players who attracted his attention and should either of them play in the United States, it would be in the summer only — and they would not have to leave Wycombe.

Meanwhile the whole of Wycombe is focusing on this Saturday's attractive looking F.A. Cup tie at home to Bournemouth, which is expected to attract a large crowd

Concerned

Spectators could have the unusual experience of seeing David Webb, Bournemouth's coach playing in the forward line.

Webb, of course, made his name as a defender with Chelsea and Queens Park Rangers, but he has been so concerned by Bournemouth's shortage of goals, that against York in Division Four last Saturday, he joined the attack.

The move helped end the club's goal drought as they earned a 1-1 home draw, the scorer being Jon Moore.

Bournemouth have slipped into the lower half of the table, and manager Alec Stock, having seen Wycombe's 2-0 victory over Hitchin last week admitted "we're in for a really tough game."

Stand tickets will be on sale both tonight (Tuesday) and Thursday, between 7 and 8 p.m. The sales have been slow so far, so there are plenty of tickets still available.

Should there be a replay, it will take place at Dean Court on Tuesday.
